

Martin Luther King Poem

A world where all belong, does not only have to be truth within a song.

It can happen, do you not see? It can be real, like you and me.

A world where all can be free, is a world of equality.

We can make this world change, and it can all start with just words on a page.