

1. Theodore Roosevelt the Conservationist by Dan Snarr

When I sculpted this piece I not only wanted to show a sense of appreciation for the things he could see in front of him but the great foresight he had that is such a gift to all of us today.

2. Bill of Rights Preamble

The United States Bill of Rights comprises the first ten amendments to the United States Constitution

3. Lincoln by Mark Lundeen

Lincoln was an elegant orator and a great President. He had the difficult job of trying to make the Country whole after the Civil War and to get people to forgive and forget.

4. Ronald Reagan by Mark Lundeen

This cast bronze statue of Ronald Reagan presents him with his left foot resting on a concrete bench, work gloves in his left hand. With a Stetson on his head, he is smiling as he imparts his wisdom to passersby in the park.

5. Strength to our People by Matt Glen

The picture of Franklin Roosevelt that we used to create the statue was of him addressing a crowd on the back of a train. The title comes from him being a President for the People and having their best interest always in mind. We wanted to depict him when he was younger and in his prime and it was early in his political career.

6. George Washington by George & Mark Lundeen

In the sculpture, as he (Washington) looks up from reading the preamble to the Constitution, he sees the United States of America he helped to create and so faithfully served.

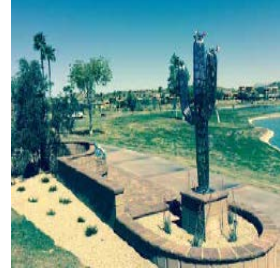

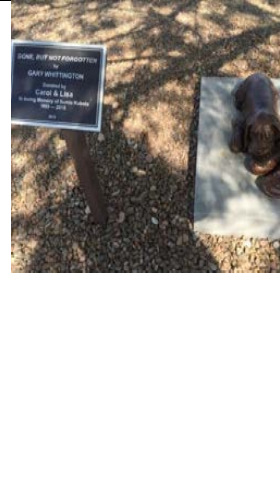

7. Thomas Jefferson by George & Mark Lundeen

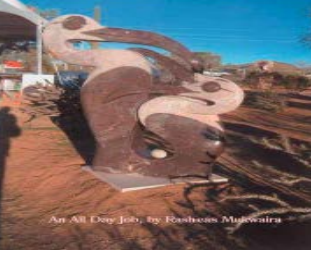

Jefferson is depicted sitting on a bench holding a large document paper in both hands. He is wearing colonial-style clothing with buckle shoes, knee stockings, coat over a vest with a ruffle shirt.

8. Return to Puye by Doug Hyde

	9. Spirit of the Saguaro by Don Kenworthy The Saguaro is made of stainless steel square bar. The flowers and birds are made of copper and the butterflies are stained glass		10. First Love by Carol Cunningham This sculpture of the young girl hugging her horse depicts the close love the girl and horse have for each other.
	11. Last Doll by Doug Hyde This bronze depicts a maturing Native American girl who is grasping her "Last Doll" and simultaneously looking beyond the doll to the future..		12. Adolescence by Vala Ola She is coming into adolescence. Her awareness of becoming a young woman has been awakened. The cat was sculpted for this project to complement the figure.
	Quakers by Mike W. Dwyer The Sculpture's name Quackers became the natural name for this composition because of the mallards and crackers.		13. My Buddy by Victor Issa My Buddy is "a complete package of childhood fun, favored family pet and a complete sense of belonging."
	14. Bob the Frog by Randy Hand He started out as a table top size piece, and a paper weight size piece.		15. George the Tortoise by Randy Hand I thought that a slow moving tortoise should have a look of being happy, satisfied and not worried about moving fast for anyone.
	16. Gone but not Forgotten by Doug Whittington Chloe was a faithful companion to Sumio. She went hiking, camping and fishing. The boots are his hiking boots. His favorite tree in the park was the Palo Verde. The tiny yellow blossoms reminded him of the tiny pink blossoms on the cherry trees native to this homeland Japan.		17. Second Story View by Jeff Bates Second Story View became an idea when Jeff bought 300 feet of coiled steel at a junk auction. The minute he saw the material, he knew it would be a giraffe. He had a picture in his head of the entire project before he got home from the auction.

	18. Man in the Moon by Kyle Ashley Town Council accepted Man in the Moon in March 2014 which is a bronze.		19. Mural Wall by Fountain Hills High School Students
	20. Veterans Memorial by Ron Head Depict each of the foreign wars the U.S. has been active in.		21. Athena's Prayer by James N. Muir "Athena" is the classical goddess, not only of War but also of Wisdom. A modern Athena, just returned from Battle with the enemies of America, helmet held protecting her heart, looks heavenward in Prayer. She symbolizes the feminine "prudence" to war.
	22. Soldier at War by Ron Head The life size figure was modeled after my father, a WWII veteran now 88 years old, who posed for this sculpture. The veterans found an original WWI uniform that I used for detail and then added the Medal of Honor from research of my own.		23. Aviator by George Lundeen The Lord gave me wings in '57. I flew far and high, he protected me while in the sky. I now stand with wings in hand always looking up reminiscing times gone by.
	24. Albero Gran by Roger Hubbard My first inspiration with Albero Gran came one night in that twilight of consciousness passing just before sleep. The vision in the near stillness that night had rigid geometric shapes blended into elegantly flowing shapes, curving, turning, climbing, each piece becoming smaller as it made its way upward toward the sky.		25. Blowing in the Wind by Willie Vasquez The sculpture represents self-expression as his life was filled with adventure, creativity and love.

	26. Lovers by Witness Bonjisi Two lovers are entwined in an everlasting kiss.		27. An All Day Job by Rasheas Mukiwaira In this sculpture, a mother pelican tends to her baby in a loving caress while the baby clings to its mother for its every need. .
	28. Quiet Pursuit by Mike Dwyer The sculpture captures the attitude, expression, and movement that exemplifies the Bobcat.		29. Fred & Ginger by Patrick Mack This piece was inspired by watching old movies of the famous actors, Fred Astaire and Ginger Rogers.
	30. Coyote and Key by Deon Duncan The sculpture Coyote and Key was created as a guttural expression of hope, desire, frustration and ambition.		31. Second Mesa by Martha Pettigrew A petroglyph on Second Mesa, shows a maiden riding in a wingless, dome-shaped craft. The petroglyph signified the coming Day of Purification when the true Hopi will fly to other planets in "ships without wings."
	32. Infinity Ring by Charles Sherman The continuum of planes that create Charles' Infinity Ring sculptures are inspired by the Moebius Strip. The rings have no beginning and no end. The bottom side becomes the top side and the inside becomes the outside.		33. Vigilance by David LaMure Jr. A male and female pair of indigenous red-tailed hawks in flight circling their next. We are all vigilant, protective and passionate about our lives and families.
	34. Big Blue by Don Kenworthy An abstract representation of the great Blue Heron.		35. Emma's Garden by Scott Streadbeck A sculpture modeled after the artists own daughter. He wanted to capture her young, innocent beauty. This sculpture contains elements of both reality and fantasy.